Dynamic Synergies Group Expands Service Offerings and Executive Staff: Advanced Technology Solutions and Managed Services to Meet Client Demands

Langhorne PA, February 28, 2007: Dynamic Synergies Group, Inc. ("DynSyn"), a Business, Management, and Technology Consulting and Staffing firm is expanding its offerings. The Company will provide advanced technology solutions including support, project management, and infrastructure management to eliminate those burdens from its clients. DynSyn will be establishing Managed Services as a core business in response to client requests to outsource their infrastructure management and support. In addition, staff augmentation services are available in all technical disciplines, including application programming.

"For the last five years or so, we've seen a drastic increase in our clients seeking alternatives to supporting their infrastructure, technical support needs, and management of their computers and systems," explained Don George, President & CEO. "In order to provide the best possible alternatives, we are bringing on two seasoned executives with a proven track record of building, developing and delivering these types of services."

Jim Boyle has joined DynSyn as Vice President of Client Services & Operations where he defines and develops specific Company offerings for our clients. In addition, Jim often works with clients' Senior Executives at the CxO level in engagements requiring alignment of Operations to business strategies, establishing metrics to ensure successful performance, developing Operating Plans, establishing and directing Program Management Offices, and providing Project Management for complex projects. He has performed several assessments and readiness reviews in which clients' feasibility for outsourcing, managed services, organizational skill mix, and performance were determined. Jim joins DynSyn after nearly 25 years with SunGard Higher Education (formerly SCT) where he was Vice President and General Manager.

Rich Felte serves as Vice President of Project & Implementation Services where he develops, manages, and directs client projects. He establishes Project Management Office (PMO) facilities and disciplines, while building appropriate staff and other resources to meet assignment objectives. As a strong technologist, Rich is instrumental in assessing clients' readiness and position for technology-based initiatives. He works extensively with client personnel and builds strong, empowered work groups. Rich has outstanding skills necessary to forecast project timelines, costs, and resource requirements... and the ability to creatively solve those challenges. He works well with Senior Management and Executives as well as with staff. Rich was most recently a General and has joined DynSyn after more than 17 years at Sungard.
